GURBANI PATH

Reading Gurbani has been greatly emphasized in Sikhism. Most of us perform it only as an act of pious, ritualistic or charitable nature. Perhaps, that is why various methods and rituals of Gurbani recitation like Akhand Paath; series of Sukhmani Sahib, Nitname and Nam Simran sessions are in vogue.

Many preachers, priests, especially the so-called sants, cult heads, and dehradar babas exhort their followers: Do Paath, Nam Jap and Simran. All this seems to have developed a business mentality among greedy priests, sadhs and even some institutions to mint money in the guise of religious practice. So much so, Brahmanical rituals also accompany Gurbani recitation.

No doubt, reading Gurbani and meditating on Naam are very important. But should this practice remain limited to mere reciting or getting read Gurbani Path by hired readers? It is most painful to see that most of our religious and political institutions have become subservient to those who hold and promote Bramanical and mercantile mentality. Path, its exposition, Kirtan, and even Naam Simran is being commercialized.

We have drifted away from the Gurus’ teaching that a Sikh must recite or hear Gurbani to seek and practice the way which leads his/her awareness to Gurmukh level or Guru-oriented thinking and living. We are expected to dwell on Gurbani and learn to shatter the veil of ego and ignorance so as to lead helpful, happy and peaceful life in society. We ignore this advice and do not advance from mere recitation part.

On the other hand, we have started worshiping our Gurus like avtars and reading/selling their Bani like Jantar-Mantars! In the absence of understanding what the Gurbani says and means our self remains enveloped in ignorance and superstitions. Aad Guru Granth Sahib is being worshiped like an idol.

Let us try to answer these common questions, which arise about Gurbani Path:

Why, how and for what purpose should the Gurbani be recited?

Sikhs must read/recite Gurbani to understand how to dispel ignorance and enlighten themselves with Gurmat Gyan and thereby reach the Gurus’ realm of awareness. Gurbani teaches us how to break the shackles of Haumai (ego) and realize our real self.

As we are driven by egocentric ‘me-mine’ attitude, there is no hope of peace and happiness in families and society. We are always under undue anxiety, stress and strain. Its solution, according to Gurmat, is to attain Jiwan-Mukti (liberation) while performing social duties of day-to-day life. We can learn and practice this way of life by reading and understanding the Gurus’ message conveyed in Gurbani:

He whom the Guru has instructed is emancipated in this world. [2]

Reading and listening to Gurbani is a means to the goal of understanding, imbibing and practicing Gurus’ teaching and wisdom. Reading/reciting without grasping the essence does not help in our spiritual development:

Not through studying, but through understanding, the Lord's secret is found. [3]

Gurmat does not prescribe or recognize any specific method of reciting Gurbani. It does not require any particular dress, place, time or ritual. Unfortunately, various dehers, taksals, so-called sadh-sants and sects use and propagate their own ways of doing Path, chanting selected Sabds as mantras, telling rosaries, sitting in Samadhi etc. All such practices are rejected by Gurbani as the crest of Gurmat-oriented life is Truthful Living or becoming Sachiara.

Truth is higher than all else, higher still is truthful living. [3]
Gurbani defines Mannukh conduct as neither meditating on Naam nor contemplating Sabd:

\[
\text{nwm} \ n \ \text{cyq} \ n, \ \text{sbdu} \ n \ \text{vIcwrih}, \ \text{iehu} \ \text{mnmuK} \ \text{kw} \ \text{Awcwru}.

AGGS, M 3, p. 508.

Those asleep in duality, never wake up from the love and affection of the mammon. They think not of the Name and do not ponder on Guru’s hymns. This is the conduct of the self-willed, perverse persons. [3]

Are not we on the Mannukhi path if mere ritual reading or hiring someone to recite Gurbani has been substituted for comprehension (Vichar) and practice (Kamai) of Gurus’ teaching? Is this sad situation not the outcome of Brahmanical influence, which is subtly engulfing our thinking and controlling our congregational activities?

The need of the hour is a serious self-analysis at the individual as well Panthic level to understand how and why are we going astray from the Gurus’ will? The solution lies in the following phrase of Guru Amardas:

\text{so isKu} \ \text{sKw} \ \text{bMDpu} \ \text{hY} \ \text{BweI} \ \text{ij} \ \text{gur} \ \text{ky} \ \text{BwxY} \ \text{ivic} \ \text{AwvY} \ \text{Awpxy} \ \text{BwxY} \ \text{jo} \ \text{clY} \ \text{BweI} \ \text{ivCiV} \ \text{cotW} \ \text{KwvY}.

AGGS, M 3, p 601.

He alone is the true disciple, friend, Kinsman and brother who follows the Guru’s will. He, who follows his own will, O brother, is separated from the Lord and bears blows. [3]

For this purpose, we need a global Sikh Vichar Manch where free and fearless discussions on Gurmat guidance for Sikh issues can be held. No doubt, our Gurdwaras are the best venues for this but it is common knowledge that their managements try to control the proceedings according to their own thinking.

Let us remember that reading/reciting and listening to Gurbani, doing Nitname, Nam Jap, Simran etc are means to reach the goal of becoming Sachiara Sikhs who attain Jiwan-Mukti while selflessly performing their social and family duties:

\text{tM} \ \text{mM} \ \text{nwMc} \ \text{ti} \ \text{Swm} \ \text{qw} \ \text{Sv} \ \text{hT} \ \text{cm}.

AGGS, M 5, p 522.

Fifth Guru Nanak says, by meeting the true Guru, man comes to know the perfect device of living, while laughing, playing, enjoying dresses and eating, he gets emancipated. [3]

Editorial Note: ‘Gurbani’ according to Bhai Kahn Singh in Gurmat Martand eis as follows: The Bani, uttered by the mouth of Satguru Nanak and his successor Gurus through the inspiration of the Almighty, is called Gurbani. Although Bhai Gurdas used this term, Gurbani, for the Bani of others also, but according to Bhai Kahn Singh this term is specially reserved for the Bani of the Sikh Gurus.

INHERITED TREASURE

"As the inherited treasure (Gurbani) of ancestors (Gurus) was opened and viewed, then my mind was illumined with Treasure (Gurbani). Compared with this treasure the jewels and rubies have no value. The chest is full of inexhaustible and immeasurable treasure (Gurbani). Let us utilize it together, and dispense (disseminate) it among others, O’Brothers. The Treasure (Gurbani) will not be exhausted instead it would multiply manifold.

Nanak says: Whosoever has the desire in his mind to have it, can be a shareholder of this Treasure (Gurbani)."
